Constitutional Amendment

An Act proposing an amendment to Section 4 of Article V, of the Constitution of this State by striking out of said Section all thereof which requires the payment of money as a qualification to Register.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Delaware in General Assembly met (two-thirds of all the members elected to each House agreeing herein):

SECTION 1. That Section 4 of Article V of the Constitution of this State, be and the same is hereby rmended by striking out of said Section 4 the following words:

"and each voter shall, at the time of his registration, pay a registration fee of one dollar, for the use of the County where such registration is paid."

Passed at Dover, the twenty-first day of March, A. D., 1905.

ISAAC T. PARKER, President of the Senate.
WM. D. DENNEY, Speaker of the House.

Approved this the thirtieth day of March, A. D. 1905,

PRESTON LEA, Governor

I, Joseph L. Cahall, Secretary of State of the State of Delaware, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true and correct copy of Senate Bill No. 16, entitled "An Act proposing an amendment to Section 4 of Article V, of the Constitution of this State by striking out of said Section all thereof which requires the payment of money as a qualification to Register," as the same appears on the enrolled bill filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and approved by the Governor, March thirtieth A. D. 1905, which said bill proposing such amendment to the Constitution of this State is published in accordance with the requirements of the Constitution of the State.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and official seal, at Dover, this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six.

Why Buy McClure's?

McClure's Magazine is bought and read in homes not because it is a magazine but because it is the magazine. Why?

FIRST—THE PRICE. It costs but one dollar a year, or less than ten cents a number, for over thirteen hundred two-column pages of reading matter. This amounts in actual bulk to twenty or twenty-five books costing anywhere from a dollar to two dollars a volume.

SECOND—QUALITY. The reading matter is written by America's leading writers—the best short story writers, the best writers on timely articles, the best writers of important serials, such as Schur's Reminiscences or Baker's Railroad articles.

THIRD—TIMELINESS. The reading matter in McClures is not only good; it is not only entertaining, amusing, instructive and inspiring—it is also about the subjects in which you and all Americans are most interested at the time. No subjects in the next twelve months are going to be so important as the question of railroad rates and rebates and the question of life insurance. Both of these questions will be discussed by authorities in an impartial, careful, interesting way.

FOURTH—ITS CHARACTER. McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time, there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read its advertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.

McClure's Magazine

in your home is intended to work only for good. Send $1.00 to-day for one year's subscription, or leave an order at your book-store. November and December free with new subscriptions for the 1906.

USEFUL THINGS TO KNOW

Ink Stains.—Soak in sour milk. If a dark stain remains, rinse in a weak solution of chloride of lime.

Blood Stains.—Soak in cold salt water, then wash in warm water with plenty of good soap; afterwards boil.

Sewing Machine Oil Stains.—Rub with lard. Let stand for several hours, then wash with cold water and soap.

Scorch Stains.—Wet the scorched place, rub with soap and bleach in the sun.

Mildew Spots.—Soak in a weak solution of chloride of lime for several hours. Rinse in cold water.

Grease Spots.—Hot water and soap generally remove these, but if fixed by long standing use ether, chloroform, or naphtha. All three of these must be used away from the fire or artificial light.

Hot Tea and Coffee Stains.—Soak the stained fabric in cold water, wring, spread out, and pour a few drops of glycerine on each spot. Let it stand several hours, then wash with cold water and soap.

Iron Rust Spots.—Soak thoroughly with lemon juice, sprinkle with salt and bleach for several hours in the sun.

Fruit Stains.—Stretch the fabric containing the stain over the mouth of a basin and pour boiling water on the stain. If the stain has become fixed, soak the article in a weak solution of oxalic acid, or hold the spot over the fumes of sulphur.

Vaseline Stains.—Saturate the spot with ether. Place a cup over it to prevent evaporation. Use the ether with great care.

Pitch, Wheel Grease and Tar Stains.—Soften the stains with lard, then soak in turpentine. Scrape off carefully with a knife all the loose surface dirt. Sponge clean with turpentine, and rub gently until dry.

Silk Stockings.—Never use soap in washing silk stockings. Bran in water is the proper fluid to use—four tablespoonfuls to a quart of water. Rinse in several clear waters, pressing the water out. Dry stockings in the sun.

Uses for Common Salt.—Mix starch with it to prevent lumping—eleven parts starch, one part salt.

Put a pinch of salt in whites of eggs when beating them; also use it when whipping cream.

Put salt in cold water when you wish to cool a dish.

Rub salt on flat irons before using.

Use salt on carpets to prevent moths.

Put salt in whitewash to make it stick.

Use salt for cleaning piano keys, knife handles and glass spotted by hard water.

Salt dissolved in alcohol will remove grease stains from clothing.

Salt sprinkled on the pantry shelves will drive away ants.

A little salt will revive a fire.

To make a candle burn all night, put finely powdered salt on it until the salt reaches the black part of the wick. In this way a mild and steady light may be kept all through the night by a small piece of candle.

Cure for Sleeplessness.—Sleeplessness on a cold night is often caused by the head, which is exposed, being cold while the rest of the body is warm. In nine cases out of ten if a silk handkerchief is put over the head it will induce the much desired sleep.

Bad cuts and burns sometimes happen in the kitchen, so it is well to know of handy remedies. To stop the bleeding of a bad cut, apply finely-powdered rice or flour to the wound. If soft soap is to be had, it will ease the pain of a burn at once.

Careful ablution and the use of good soap, strict attention to diet, plenty of outdoor exercise, an occasional mild aperient and a little cold cream rubbed well into the face on a windy day, also on retiring, will secure for anyone a complexion to be envied.

Those who suffer from stoutness should take plenty of exercise; never eat potatoes or bread, no suet or fat and never eat and drink at the same time. Thin biscuits or toast may be taken, and never touch milk or beer. If this is persevered with, a satisfactory result will follow.

To make paper transparent saturate it in castor oil and then dry it.

Remove smoke stains from ivory by immersing it in benzine and going over it with a brush.

Boil six peach kernels in a quart of milk to be used for custard. It will improve the flavor.

A good cook adds a teaspoonful of sugar to each quart of water in which corn, peas and squash are cooked.

Sift a tablespoonful of flour with the cornmeal used for mush. It will prevent the mush sticking.

Keep all the kitchen utensils in one place, and a small one at that; it will save time and steps.

A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6th, 1906.

NOTHING during the course of the whole Cuban imbroglio has created more interest and discussion than the publication by the State Department of the correspondence between President Palma and Consul General Steinhart early in September over the prospect of American intervention. The correspondence shows that Palma, even at that early stage of the game, was ready to throw up his hands and admit the impossibility of keeping order in Cuba without the assistance of the United States. The reply of President Roosevelt through the State Department that intervention would only be attempted by this government as a last resort shows how closely the administration stayed to the letter and spirit of the Platt amendment. The correspondence also show that President Palma lacked fortitude, nerve, and was ready to desert the ship long before this country was convinced that he had exhausted all methods of either comprising with the rebels of putting them down by force. Now that the United States has stepped in little doubt is expressed at the State Department that a factory arrangement will be reached. The best class of Cubans realize that this government is a true friend to the republic, and while in all probability, the preponderence of Cuban sentiment would be for immediate annexation, the administration has made it plain that Cuba must make another trial and if possible, establish her own government on a permanent and safe basis. The selection of Governor Magoon of Panama as the temporary governor of Cuba was reached only at the last moment and is said to be because of his familiarity with Cuban laws reached during his term in the War Department in connection with the Bureau of Insular affairs. Governor Magoon will oversee the preparation for the coming elections in the island, and there is no question that they will be held under strict supervision such as will preclude the possibility of fraud and satisfy both factions of the Cuban public that they are being given a square deal from the top of the pack.

It is stated at the Department of Justice that the delay in filling the suits against the Standard Oil Company is due primarily to the Cuban crisis, the President not being willing to act in the absence of Secretary Taft in whose judgement as a lawyer he has great confidence. It is known, however, that everything is in readiness for the filing of the suits as soon as the plan of legal campaign has received the approval of the President. It is not yet known whether the prosecution against the Standard Oil Co., will be of a civil or a criminal nature. It is believed that there is ample material for a criminal prosecution should such be determined on. This is not the only matter of wide-spread public importance that is awaiting the action of the department of Justice. The Attorneys for the Department, who investigated the Ann Arbor Ice Trust case, are all ready to report, and it is understood that they have made out a strong case against both the railroads and the ice combine. The Department is always busy passing on a great number of complaints as to alleged violations of the eight hour labor law. These are coming in from all points, and in view of the sweeping nature of the President's recent order, it is probable that they will all be fought to a finish, and a finish can have but one result, the conviction of the defendents.

Speaking of eight hour laws, the Post-office Department is confronted with the same trouble in respect to city letter carriers, but more especially on a complaint just received from the railway mail clerks. The letter carriers in almost all cities of the country are a hard worked body of men, and while in many cases their actual working hours are limited to eight hours a day, they are practically on duty much longer than that. Tours of collection and delivery may each cover a comparatively short time, but the intervals during which they are supposed to be off duty are frequently too short to allow them even to return from the post-office to their homes, so that they are practically continuously on duty for much more than the eight hours prescribed by law.

The case of the railway mail clerks is even more serious because many of their runs are considerably over eight hours and it is manifestly impossible for them to quit a train in mid-career before their ronte is finished. The Port Office Department has not yet given any decision in the case of the railway mail clerks, but it is believed that some compromise will have to be reached whereby a clerk will be given credit for all the time over eight hours consumed in a given run, and his period of duty will be reduced so as to bring it within 48 hours per week regardless of the time that he may be on duty at a single stretch.

The appointment of a judge in District of Columbia Court is not often a matter of outside interest, but there is considerable interest attached to the removal by the President this week of Assistant Attorney General Robb who will be given the place of Associate Justice in the District Court of Appeals. Mr. Robb is a Vermont man and since he has been in the Department of Justice has been involved in many suits of great national interest. He was prosecutor of Senator Burton in the famous post-office case, and was made Special Attorney General in connection with the inheritance tax cases of which there are now fully $8,000,000 still pending. Mr. Robb has expressed a wish to fight these cases to a conclusion, being confident that he can win them before taking his seat on the District bench.

Varnish and Paint Stains.—If the stain is on a coarse fabric, dissolve by saturating it with turpentine; use alcohol if on a fine fabric. Sponge with chloroform, if a dark ring is left by the turpentine.

Again there is a tidal wave of popularity for the wasp waist. It will be fashion's model in the fall and winter. For ten years the wasp waist has been in retirement.

There are a whole lot of people who act as if they were afraid that their neighbors and associates would not find out now nice they are if they did not keep telling them.

"I never was anything, dearest, until I knew you."

Princess gowns—the kind that fit very, very close and make men turn around to look—are no longer "a la mode," so declare the dressmakers of Chicago. It is now the empire, or perferably the semi-empire—very maidenly and ingenue of appearance with high loose girdles—which is the favorite.

Home, sweet home, whether it is a father's home or a husband's home, is no longer the goal of a girls's ambition. It does not even appeal to her. A cynical man once declared that a home was a place to go to when one couldn't go any where else, and the modern Maiden looks at it pretty much from that point of view. Home is a nice place in which to stay if you haven't enough talent or intelligence to make a living outside of it. She considers the making of a home an occupations unworthy of a women of intelligence and she regards the domestic woman with a certain pitying contempt. This isn't what she wants of life. What she yearns for is a career. The women she envies are actresses, singers, lecturers, popular people who are always standing in the full glare of publicity. The idea that a woman finds a more lucrative field for her activities, more happiness' or a wide scope for her missionary efforts outside of a home is the most mischievous theory in the world.

MIDDLETOWN, DEL., OCT. 13, 1906.

TWO CONVENTIONS

Two conventions were held on Tuesday of this week. One, a county convention for the nomination of county and legislative nominees for Kent County Republicans was held at Dover. It was not what might be called harmonious, that is, not noticeably so. Starting with a clear majority, Senator Allee's managers alienated enough of the delegates to give his opponents control. He seems to have secured a majority of the legislative candidates favorable to him for re-election, but every one of the county nominees is of the opposition. Much feeling was displayed and unless concessions are made the success of the ticket in that county is endangered. While not taking sides, we think such concessions as are not matters of principle should be made by both sides, and the whole party lined up in favor of Republican success.

The other convention was all that the Dover convention was not. It was a so-called "Union Republican" State Convention, although by action of the two state committees, the two former Republican Parties had been consolidated into one. But, nevertheless, about forty, not more, delegates held this state convention and renominated the Republican State ticket, adopted a platform and kept themselves "regular." Nearly two-thirds of the men present were from three wards in Wilmington. St. Georges Hundred was about the only rural district represented. The sole intent of this convention was to make an apparent foundation on which to build the proposed ticket to be placed on the ballot for grafting purposes, either from the Democrats to keep it on, or from the Republican candidates to take it down. We do not believe the graft will work this year, after the several expositions of the 1904 scheme.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE

THE TRANSCRIPT has, time and time again, called attention to the practice of carrying and using pistols, revolvers, and like unlawful weapons. As long as a person has such a weapon about him the temptation is to use it. Sometimes the provocation is great but usually it is small. Innocent people are often seriously injured by the reckless use of guns of various kinds. Last Saturday night, at least one young man was fortunate to escape by inches. A revolver shot in the middle of the town, with a crowd all around was the means of endangering this life. The reckless shooting must be prevented. It will be too late to stop it, after a death or serious injury has resulted. Punishment by a fine or short imprisonment seems to have no effect. The probable solution will be the restriction of the sale of weapons of this class by licensed dealers and they compelled to keep a record of their sales. In this way, the number of accidents and homicides will be decreased.

FOR AN INLAND WATER ROUTE

"Perhaps some day the United States government will come to realize the wisdom of providing a general system of inland waterways back from the Atlantic coast line. Germany has provided especial canals for the quick passage of warships and boats engaged in the work of handling the commerce of that country; but mainly as a measure of protection.

"The great coast line of the United States on this side of the continent frequently makes it a serious matter to shift warships from the north to the south or the reverse There are a number of danger points along the coast and for heavy ships navigation is sometimes precarious. The present agitation of the ship canal project through the Delaware and Maryland peninsula is but the beginning of what is to come some day. The subject, as we have frequently noted, is not of purely local interest. It is a subject that ought to concern the entire country, and it is a national proposition. Thus it is pertinent to quote what the Times-Union of Jacksonville has to say on the subject of inland waterways to Florida:

"An inland waterway from Jacksonville to New York, deep enough and wide enough for the use of river steamers, would make possible the shipment by water to New York or any other point on this waterway, without change of bulk, of freight from any town in the United States in a navigable river running into the Atlantic Ocean south of Cape Cod. It would also make possible the passage of torpedo boats, torpedo-boat destroyers and light-draft gunboats from any other point on the coast to any other protected by a strip of land from the attack of a hostile fleet which might be cruising outside. It would make possible the concentration without hindrance of a large part of the United States navy at any threatened point.

"A project is being discussed of a ten-foot channel from Norfolk to Beaufort inlet in North Carolina. This would be accomplished by deepening either the Albemarle and Chesapeake or the Dismal Swamp canal. From the Chesapeake to the Delaware the deepening of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal would give inland communication with Philadelphia. Then by the Delaware and Raritan communication would be had with New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island ports without going outside.

"If the government should undertake this work, as it will sooner or later, it will continue it into the gulf and this would mean a canal across Florida. Inland waterways would continue to the southern extremity of the state, but to save time and give American vessels an advantage in case of war a canal across the state would be needed.

"Unlike the work of canal digging, each part of this work would be useful as it progressed. Sooner or later the government will undertake it and will gradually complete it. It will be of vital importance in case of war and of vast benefit for commercial uses.

"From New York to Jacksonville the distance is given as 1077 miles. By water we fancy that it would be much further, and especially when the matter of wind and other conditions are considered. By an inland water route the distance would possibly be close on to 1500 miles, but the gain would be the avoidance of storms and heavy seas. Should it be made possible to send a warship from New York to Jacksonville by an inside route the advantage would be tremendous, particularly if there was a hurry call for vessels to the far South.

"The scheme is feasible and the consideration of the canal project between the Delaware and Chesapeake bays is merely the beginning. With canals already existing the enlargement is simply a question of dollars and labor. There are no hard problems to solve from an engineering point of view so far as the Delaware and Raritan and the Delaware and Chesapeake canals are concerned. As to the canals still further to the south we imagine that the same conditions hold good. No doubt the American people of the future will have for their use just what the Jacksonville paper suggests—a completed inland water route all the way from New York to the Gulf of Mexico."—Morning News.

THE POULTRY SHOW

The annual meeting of the Delaware Poultry and Pet stock Association was held Thursday afternoon at Eleventh and West streets, Wilmington, and poultry and pigeon fanciers from different sections of the county and nearby Pennsylvania points were in attendance. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and it was unanimously decided to hold the annual poultry show in Turn Hall on Tuesday, January 5th.

The members are pleased with the outlook for the Show, which was very successful last year.

President, L Scott Townsend, Wilmington; Vice President, William H. Moore, Chadd's Ford Pa.; Secretary, Courtland C. Rice, Wilmington; Treasurer, the Rev. Joel S. Gilfillan, Newark; Superintendent of Poultry, John M. Donahoe, Edge Moor; Superintendent of pigeons, Joseph H. Gould, Wilmington; Executive Committee, John M Donohoe; Chairmen: George H. Hollis, Wilmington; Walter Lilly, Newark; Charles P. Cochran, Middletown; Norris G. Temple, Pocopson, Pa.; W. J. Marshall, Wilmington; T. E. Clayton, Mt. Pleasant.

DELAWARE COLLEGE

The Alumni and other friends of Delaware College will be glad to know of this year's auspicious opening. The Freshman class is unusually large, and the students are more mature and better prepared to begin the work than in recent years. The new students represent seventeen towns in the State, Wilmington naturally leading in numbers. It is a pleasure also to find that so many students have selected the Classical course. The Engineering Courses of "Delaware" are of course well and favorably known and attract always a large number of students. Their reputation has served to obscure somewhat the excellent courses which the College offers to those who wish a thorough training in the arts and sciences as a fundamental preparation for business or for any of the learned professions. The various departments are under the care of trained teachers who have well-equipped laboratories, excellent special libraries and an ample general library to assist them in their work.

The students are taking more than the usual interest in the different branches of athletics. The new Drill Hall and Gymnasium affords excellent facilities for physical exercise and development. At present the all-absorbing topic is foot-ball. With a well-arranged schedule and and the support of an enthusiastic student body, this should be one of the most successful seasons in recent years. The game as played under the new rules offers greater advantages to the lighter college teams, and speed rather than weight will be the determining factor. The squad, numbering about thirty-five, under the supervision of Captain Messick and several of the old graduates, is fast developing a strong, aggressive team. The baseball manager has about completed his schedule; and the especial feature of this department of athletics will be a two weeks' southern trip during the Easter vacation. The team will play the strongest teams of Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina. The new "Gym" has made basket ball possible, and it now ranks among the recognized college sports. During the winter season when out door work is impossible, this game furnishes a pleasant as well as a beneficial form of exercise. Track teams, etc., in season receive there share of interest and support. Every year the College is represented in the "Field Sports" held at Franklin Field, University of Pennsylvania. Inter-class tennis tournaments are held every June. The winning class receives a banner and the individual winner a handsome racket, which is offered by the association.

The flourishing condition of the College should be a source of pride among the Alumni. Their practical support of their Alma Mater is very much needed at this stage of "Delaware's" history. With a steady increase in the number of students the College must have more funds for general expenses. Individual alumni could assist greatly by contributions for definite objects, such as the purchase of books for the general library, books or apparatus for the engineering departments, books for the other special libraries, or apparatus for the gymnasium. Every such donation would bear the name of the giver and would thus furnish to a graduate a tangible connection with his Alma Mater.

SOLVE THE POSTAL PROBLEM

There will soon be presented to the Postal Commission, which by direction of Congress is inquiring into the working of second class mail regulations to learn whether its classification "should not be grounded upon practical rather than ideal distinction," a plan for the settlement of the disputes over classification long troubling the Post Office Department. This plan, it is expected, will take the place of the proposal of the Department, everywhere warmly denounced, to combine the second and third classes of mail at a uniform rate of four cents a pound.

The suggestion comes from the Periodical Publishers' Association, the organization of magazine and weekly newspaper publishers representing all the prominent periodicals in the country.

It is in effect that the Commission recommend to Congress the creation of a permanent postal tribunal on the lines of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, to deal with problems in postal classification, as the other Commission deals with railroad rates. Such a commission, it is contended, would speedily settle disputes which now cause so much friction between the Department and the publishers, and at the same time would rid the second class mail of the many sheets masquerading as periodicals, while really nothing more than gratuitously circulated advertising mediums. The effect of such a clearance would greatly reduce the deficit from second class mail handling and would render abortive further agitation for an increase in the second class rate.

The Publishers' Association will suggest that such a commission be composed of three members, one of whom should be familiar with the publishing business. It should have jurisdiction over all matters of postal classification, with an appeal only to the United States Circuit Court. It should have the right to deny the use of the mails to violators and to pass on all applications for admission to second class privileges.

With such a commission weeding out offenders against the postal regulations, the Association believes that the present rate for second class mail should stand, except possibly in regard to free sample copies of periodicals. The plan has been submitted already to the Post Office authorities and is likely to have their endorsement. If the Commission accepts it, it will probably be enacted into law at the next session of Congress and permanently end the troubles of the Post Office Department over second class mail rates.

WATER FOWL DIMINISHING

The report on the distribution and migration of North American ducks, geese and swans, issued by the Department of Agriculture, says water fowl, formerly abundant over the whole United States, are diminishing in numbers and some species appear to be threatened with extinction in the non distant future. Their value for food is great, and they have formed in the past, and for all future time should continue to form, a valuable asset and an important source of revenue to the several states which harbor them. The preservation of the numerous species of ducks, geese and swans is becoming an important matter of legislative enactment and the present report is intended to furnish information as to present range, abundance and migration of the several species with reference to practical legislation.

LETTER TO G. E. HUKILL

Middletown Del.

Dear Sir: Our agent ought to sell nine-tenths of the paint of the town and region: no use to try for the other tenth. The proportion of men, who won't take good advice, and use the least-gallons paint, is about one in ten among even owners of houses and stores and shops and barns and fences.

One man in ten will buy a gold brick or green goods, if he has the money and gets a good chance.

Devoe at $1.75 a gallon is better than gold, adulterated and short-measure paints are green goods and gold bricks.

Devoe saves half, more or less, of the labor and wages of painting: it is all paint full strength and full measure. There is no other such paint within ten per cent. Ten per cent of labor and paint is worth saving and ten is the least. There are scores of paints that throw-away half of both gallons and labor on whiting china clay, ground stone barytes, benzine, water—all they are good for is to make gallons of nothing and look like paint in the can; more gallons to buy and more gallons to pay for putting-on—gold bricks and green goods. Here's how they work.

Judge I D Fairchild owns two houses exactly alike in Lufkin, Texas. J H Torrence painted both houses: one Devoe, 15½ gallons; the other with another paint sold at same price; 25 gallons. That 25 gallon paint is weak and 15 per cent. whiting; that's why it took 9½ gallons more.

Yours truly
F W DEVOE & CO

Our Fall Shoe Sale
IS NOW ON

Of course you remember our summer sale of Shoes. If you were one of the thousands who took advantage of this sale you will NEVER forget it. Hundreds of families were supplied with high grade shoes at ordinary prices.

Our fall sale of shoes is going to be even greater than the summer sale, if such a thing is possible. The reason for these sales is that we have too much stock of high grade shoes and take this means of reducing it. One other reason is that we intend to make this the most popular shoe store in this state.

If you are coming to Wilmington this week or next be sure and stop in and see these shoes. If you are not coming here soon send us your order and necessary instructions such as price, size, kind of leather, etc., with money order, or check and we will send your shoes the same day as order is received.

Our mail order department is always open.

A western man who has had considerable experience in raising potatoes says that by planting two or three flax seed in each hill not a bug appeared in the patch. He claims to have tried it for several years in succession with always the same result. This is a simple and inexpensive experiment and is worth trying.

Ground was broken this week for the erection of a modern parish house adjoining St. Josephs Catholic Church in this town. The new property will be occupied by Father Crowley when completed, and will be modern and up-to-date. The site selected is one of the prettiest in town, and affords a beautiful view of the surrounding country.

Owing to the unfavorable weather on Saturday afternoon last, the Primary Department of Bethesda M. E. Sunday School did not take their trolley ride to Odessa; but if the weather is favorable for such an outing the little ones will be taken out this (Saturday) afternoon, and are requested to meet at the church promply at three o'clock. If the day should prove unfavorable, the ride will be taken the first good day next week, immediately after school hours.

R. A. Brice, a commission merchant of Philadelphia, and well known in this section, who has been suffering with inflammatory rheumatism for several months, has decided to take the bee cure. Recently he ordered a consignment of honey bees from Middletown and will allow them to sting the affected parts. The bees were sent to him by mail in a perforated pasteboard box and buzzed all the way to their destination.

MONTGOMERY will pay cash for Black Walnuts in the shell.

Mr. Fletcher Caulk, of near Sassafras, Md., was quietly married in Philadelphia, to Miss Marie E. Williamson, of that city, Wednesday, and returned to his home with his bride on the 4 31 P. M. train. The wedding was a very quiet one, none but the immediate relatives of the bride being present.

The Levy Court at its meeting on Tuesday awarded to Bradley, Becker & Bradley, of Philadelphia, a contract to build a concrete pier for the bridge at Fleming's Landing, on Smyrna creek. The bridge connects New Castle and Kent counties, and is maintained by both counties, although New Castle county has charge of it. The Philadelphia firm offered to do the work for $1886.17, while Franklin K. Wills bid $4175 and John E. Taylor bid $5408 and Joseph Anderson, of Delaware City bid $2950.

As a result of the special primary election held by the Democrats of Appoquinimink Hundred, on Saturday, to decide the tie between George H. Ginn and Nathaniel W. VanHorn, candidates for representative, Mr. VanHorn was nominated, although he had a margin of only seven votes. He received 106, while 99 were cast for Mr. Ginn. At the primaries held on September 8th, each received 81 votes, and it was decided to settle the matter by having another primary election. As a result there was a most spirited contest, which showed the popularity of the two men.

An unusual number of real estate sales have been made on this peninsula this summer, possibly more than were ever before made in the same length of time. It is substantial evidence supporting the statements that have been made frequently; that the real worth of farming lands is beginning to be appreciated and farming is rapidly becoming transformed from a laborious drudge to a scientific business of the first order. It is predicted and not without reason that improved farming lands will, in a few years, readily command seventy-five to one hundred and fifty dollars per acre, and wise is the man who is putting his money into Sussex and Wicomico farming land.

CENTURY CLUB TEA

First Meeting of the New Club Year Tuesday Afternoon

The Fall meetings of the New Century Club began last Tuesday afternoon when a very delightful "Tea" was given in the club room on South Broad street. The room had been re papered during the summer, a beautiful tapestry paper, with a light colored drop ceiling. The windows were draped with dainty swiss curtains, while yellow flowers and green leaves (yellow and green being the Club's colors) were used in the decorations. The table was set with pretty silver and china and refreshments served. Good music was rendered, Rev. Mr. Clay delighting the audience with some fine vocal selections.

The officers of the club for the year are: President, Mrs. John C Stites; First Vice-President, Mrs. Cuthbert S. Green; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Harris B. McDowell; Recording Secretary, Miss Dora R. Price; Assistant Secretary, Miss Ethel Brady; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Martha Heaton; Treasurer, Miss Hester Jones, Chairman of Standing Committees; Music, Miss Hester Jones; Current Events, Mrs. Richard Lockwood; Education, Miss Marie T. Lockwood; Civics, Mrs. Edward Reynolds; Refreshments, Miss Julia Lockwood; Social, Mrs. Harris B. McDowell.

Some of those present were: Mrs. Turner, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Mrs. Boyd McCoy, of Summit Bridge; Mrs. R. T. Cann, of Kirkwood; Miss Lily Hodge, of New York State; Mrs. J. G. Bragdon, Mrs. Walter Beasten, Mrs. Julian Cochran, Mrs. Robert Cochran, Mrs. R. R. Cochran, Mrs. A. E. Clay, Mrs. G. L. Cochran, Mrs. A. M. Chamberlaine, Mrs. Edgar Clark, Mrs. Charles Derrickson, Mrs. C. J. Freeman, Mrs. E. C. Green, Mrs. C. R. Gilpin, Mrs. C. S. Green, Mrs. M. R. Hall, Mrs. C. A. Hoffecker, Mrs. G. W. Lockwood, Mrs. A. W. Lightbourne, Mrs. L. P. McDowell, Mrs. H. B. McDowell, Mrs. J. B. Nowland, Mrs. Edward Reynolds, Mrs. C. A. Ritchie, Mrs. J. C. Stites, Mrs. H. M. Shroeder, Misses Bessie S. CIRCUS HORSES

High School Horses, that is horses that have been schooled in the highest degree of the trainers' art. Horses that walk, trot, gallop, side step, cavort, dance, march, prance and excute all sorts of tricks and evince the best manners under saddle or in park straps, have always been admired by mankind. It has remained, however, for Herr Hugo Herzog, the famous German horseman, to give us what the French term "Haute Ecole," in its most finished phases.

Herr Herzog, who first came to this country with the Barnum & Bailey Shows brought with him a whole stable full of the choicest thoroughbred Horsese, Stallions and Ponies. Since his arrival in America he has been constantly adding the pick of the horse show exhibits to this great stud of equine beauties, and now that he has effected an engagement with the Frank A. Robbins new and greatest all feature shows, he is in a position to present his famous collection of prancing beauties in the most perfect manner; virtually giving a whole horse show of the best trained, properly equipped and well schooled horses ever seen in the equestrian class. These marvelous animals execute a series of tricks, feats, acts, drills, dances, cake walks, "hootchiecoochie" and two-step movements that seem almost increditable. Introduced, as they are under saddle, in harness, and at liberty, they present perfect pictures of equine excellence, and they are, beyond question, the most valuable collection of surperbly trained horses ever brought to this country from the renowned European stables. It is impossible to enumerate all of their remarkable acts, as each horse has been trained to perform different tricks, and as they go ambling around the arena, they single out and come to the centre of the ring to execute some peculiar feat. One of the most difficult feats, however, is where one of the stallions walks erect on his hind legs, nearly all the way around the great hippodrome track.

These wonderful horses and the splendid circus with which they are exhibited will be in Middletown on Wednesday, October 24, and everything indicates that it will be a most fashionable and enjoyable event.

DIAMOND STATE TROLLEY

The affairs of the Diamond State Rapid Transit Company are progressing as fast as can be expected, and Supervising Chief Engineer Endean, who is negotiating the financial end of it in New York City, is receiving encouraging reports from his capitalists. The closing of the deal only awaits the getting together of all the necessary franchises. Attorney Charles Howell LeFevre will visit the New Castle County Levy Court and the Sussex County Levy Court for the purpose of getting the complete right of way fixed up, and when this is secured with the franchises of the few remaining towns now under consideration, and forwarded to the New York Syndicate, Mr. Endeans thinks that it will be but a short while before the money is forthcoming and the work of actual construction commenced.

BY MARY SWEET POTTER

Oh, Mother! cried Ruth, releasing the dog. So you dared to come up again. I'm glad. I've been hugging poor Dandy almost to suffocation, it seems so good to see him again.

Ruth, whispered the woman, looking like a ghost in the moonlight, I'm so troubled that I can not rest. The moon shines in at the window and upon your father's face, and he looks so different sleeping. So pale and thin. How hard he has always worked, and all for nothing—only money in the bank and the bare necessities of living. She paused and laid her hand on Dandy's head, who looked up as if surprised, it was so seldom that she found time to give him a caress. But then, he seemed to understand that the neglect to do so had not been caused by indifference or lack of love.

Yes, Mother, Ruth whispered, I know father has always been his own worst enemy. The trouble is that he could not live such a life without sacrificing you. I had to go away, and did, and I have worked till it is possible to rescue you, and so all is right. If he had not turned me out, to go to work, as he thought, I might have been here still with nothing done toward your deliverance, for it seemed to me a cruel thing to leave you alone with all this dreadful drudgery. Why, the thought of it has haunted me perpetually, and spurred me on to work harder, so that this time might the sooner arrive.

The thin, work-hardened hand toyed reflectively with Dandy's silken ears, and Laura Pierce looked out upon the shorn and smooth meadows, now glinting in the silvery moonlight.

The expression of her mother's worn face startled Ruth, and she looked at her with anxious inquiry in her deep, dark eyes, waiting for her to speak.

Something in his face to night, as he lies there, troubles me, she said at length. I never saw it look so before. The hardness is all gone out of it, and he looks so helpless.

Ruth regarded her mother fearfully.

Mother, she said at length, you are not going to fail me? Is he not as strong and well as usual? He will not stay here alone. You know Aunt Jane stands ready to come here and take charge of things, and she is hard and close like him, so she is the very woman to take the place.

But Laura Pierce seemed not to hear her daughter's voice. Her sunken eyes seemed looking back into the past or down into her own soul, searching—searching for a perfect justification of the step she had been about to take, finding the search vain.

Yes, "had been;" it had come to that, and poor Ruth read the truth plainly in her mother's joyless expression.

Each moment seems to weaken my resolve to go away. Just now I remembered something he said once, long ago, when we were first married. Remember, Laura, he said, whatever comes, I love you. And Ruthie, you are all the better and stronger for what you have done, and have been happier away from this treadmill.

While respecting her mother's mood, and to a certain extent sharing her scruples in spite of her resentment, Ruth could not believe that love had instigated the treatment her mother had always received at her father's hands; but she refrained from saying so, and, indeed, from saying anything, waiting, in dumb disappointment, for her mother to speak again. She rose at length and turned with a whisper to Ruth.

Come down, she said, and see him, and then you will understand. And Ruth arose and followed her.

As they neared the room where the weary man slept, they heard his deep, hoarse respiration, and something in the sound caused them to turn, with eyes full of troubled inquiry, to search each other's faces.

The mother laid a restraining hand on her daughter, and passed swiftly and softly to the bedside of the sleeper. Bending low, she scanned the white face of her husband; then, alarmed by what she saw there, she touched his cheek and his forehead, but he did not awaken.

James! she called, but there was no response to that call, nor to many others, sounded in all the varying tones of grief and frightened despair.

For paralysis had overtaken James Pierce in what should have been his manly prime, and the necessity for fleeing from his tyranny and cruelty was over.

The verdict of the physician who was hastily summoned gave them little hope of even a partial recovery; but ever conscious of having come so near to desertion of the helpless sufferer in the time of his greatest need, his wife and daughter devoted themselves untiringly to his care, and by force of will and skillful nursing, brought that to pass which it had not seemed possible, at first, to do.

There came a time, however, when James Pierce sat up in an easy chair and began to evince a little interest in life. He could make known to either his wife or daughter his wife or daughter his wants and wishes, but no further conversation was possible. All the hardness was gone out of his face, and his gray eyes, that for many years had been so crafty and cruel in their expression, were soft and sad.

Looking in wonder upon the change, Ruth and her mother waited upon him lovingly and patiently, feeling very thankful indeed that they had not been permitted to do that which had once seemed to them to be the only thing which could bring them freedom from misery.

They had both found peace and happiness in treasuring and caring for the helpless husband and father, whose nature seemed entirely changed, and who, with his speaking eyes and by all means in his power, expressed his gratitude for their constant labor in his behalf.

Ruth, of course, resigned her position and cancelled all other engagements in order to devote herself to her parents; and Mrs. Pierce, placing the farm into the hands of a capable neighbor, drew upon the ample means which her husband had accumulated to make his last days as comfortable and easy as possible, and also make the home as bright and comfortable for herself and Ruth as it could be under the circumstances.

And so time passed, till one day James Pierce, his speaking eyes full of perfect though late love and appreciation of his wife and daughter, yielded up the remnant of his earthly life, and went away from them, leaving a void which they found it hard to fill.

For his last days had truly been better than his first, and his gentle dependence upon them had restored all natural affection and made him unspeakably dear.

I cannot feel certain, said Ruth one day during their time of early mourning, that I was wrong in laying that hard plan against him, for he was killing you, Mother, by inches; but I know that I cannot be too thankful that it was not permitted to be carried out.

One above was ruling your life and mine, my daughter, her mother replied. He held us to our duty in spite of ourselves.

THE FARM, GARDEN AND DAIRY

Short Pungant Paragraphs Gathered Here and There

Oats are said to have originated in Northern Africa.

The better the farmer, the better the farm, the better the neighborhood the better the world.

The automobilist doesn't own the earth or even the roads, though he too often acts as if he had a fee simple in both.

Rabbits cause an annual loss in Australia amounting to $65,000,000. Science proves helpless in trying to annihilate the pest.

Three points in favor of ducks are, they grow faster than chickens are less likely to take disease, rub are practically vermin-proof.

A cheap way to fatten geese is to feed them chopped turnips or other vegetables at this season of the year. Corn or corn meal in addition, makes an excellent diet.

Probably the largest corn crop ever grown was produced a few year ago by Capt. Z Drake of South Carolina. He produced 255 bushels on one acre in one season.

Have you bought cockerels for breeding purposes next spring. Don't put it off too long. If you wait until the last minute, the best will be sold and you will be sold and you will have to take the "leavings."

One hundred and sixty bushels of oats to the acre is the product of a hundred-acre farm near Garfield, Wash., this season. At 32 cents per bushel the returns from that oat crop will be quite a good-sized sum.

Do you know what butterine is made of? Hold your nose while we read from a circular sent out by a Chicago house, telling just the stuff they put into their product: Pure cream, leaf lard, tallow, salt, oleo oil and renovated creamery butter. Must be licking good stuff to eat with strawberry shortcake or warm biscuit!

Horses are scarce and advancing in price. The tendency has been upward since the exportation of American horses to Africa during the Boer war, until good horses have almost doubled in price in the past seven years. Horse dealers are scouring many parts of the country in search of stock, and industriously picking up the desirable animals.

Many farmers make the mistake in building wire fence of driving the staples into every post as far as possible. Do not drive them clear in, except perhaps on end posts. Leave just a little "play." Then wires can easily contract or expand all along the fence, uniformly and, besides it is easier to draw such staples when necessary.

Prof. Holden, the corn expert, says: "If every ear of corn that is to be used for seed is harvested this fall and hung up to dry thoroughly before the bitter cold breezes of November, it will add millions of dollars to Iowa." The old-time custom of selecting the best ears for seed in the the fall should be more generally practised.

It is likely that the billion dollar Congress and the billion bushel wheat yield will arrive together. The estimated yield of winter and spring wheat for 1906 is 772,264,000 bushels or almost 80,000,000 bushels more than the total production of last year. It is worth while in this connection to note that not only will the home consumption be larger but also that there is a large deficit in Europe. In Russia, for instance, which exports much wheat, there is dire famiuine in many of the provinces.

Don't for a moment imagine that you can beat city money gamblers at their own game, and on a hundred or a thousand miles away. There is no short cut to great riches by way of the bucket shop. Instead of betting on corn or wheat or potatoes or cotton or hay, raise good crops of them, and you will come a great deal closer to touhing elbows with prosperity than you could in a thousand years by following the stock market.

Don't fail to oil you wagon axles, often There is a heap of humanity in axle grease.

FOR SALE CHEAP.—The best chains less bicycle made—the "Columbia," in first-class condition—coaster-brake &c and a valuable lot of sundries throw in. I am selling because the "bike" doesn't "go" in the mountains of Arizona.
